PURE FABRIC LAWS ARE URGED IN SPEECH TO WOOL GROWERS

Pure fabric laws similar to the pure food laws, requiring specific labeling of the materials that make up the fabric, were advocated today by Alexander Walker, New York manufacturer, in an address before the National Wool Growers' convention in Salt Lake today on the subject "Substitutes for Wool."

Mr. Walker declared shoddy is used in the manufacture of clothing seven to eight times before it finally is made into roofing paper.

Other speakers at today's sessions were A. G. Butterfield of Weiser, Idaho, on the subject "Silage and Silo Construction," and Dr. C. H. Gardner of Anaconda, Mont., on "Feeding and Lamb Sheds."

The convention will come to a close today following a general discussion among the delegates and election of officers for the ensuing year.

Taking as a basis for his address a plea for a square deal for the wool grower, Mr. Walker denounced the practice of fabric manufacturers in "camouflaging" under an all wool name, fabrics that are a combination of virgin wool and shoddy.

In buying a suit of clothes, the average man when he buys "all wool" suit does so under the impression that he is buying a garment made entirely of virgin wool, whereas he is buying a combination of virgin wool and shoddy. Mr. Walker pointed out, "Technically, the suit is all wool, since shoddy is wool used time and time again," he said, "but the public buys under the impression that it is all virgin wool."

House Votes Against New Building Fund

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—By unanimous vote the house public buildings committee decided today not to recommend passage at this session of congress of a general bill authorizing construction of new government buildings over the country. Committee members said their decision was made in the interest of economy.

A book agent is the wisest man in the world—you have noticed no doubt how he always asks for the lady of the house because, as Jack Warwick says, he doesn't respect the power behind the throne.

TEN COMMANDMENTS GIVEN FOR MAN'S FINANCIAL LIFE; COMMITTEE IS URGING OBSERVANCE OF THRIFT WEEK IN OGDEN

Ten commandments for a man's financial life are set forth by the local committee in connection with the observance of Thrift Week in Ogden.

These commandments are:

The modern business organization wants men who are making a success of managing their personal finances. The following Ten Commandments for one's financial life are recommended as a part of the Y. M. C. A. economic program as essential to the greatest success in life. Individuals will benefit themselves by obeying this decalogue and will perform a helpful service by suggesting it to others.

1—Work and Earn

Every man should be a producer in whatever work engaged. He should feel that he is making a contribution to society by adding to the world's wealth, by increasing the world's knowledge, by giving happiness and comfort to the world's people. Joy in one's working and the satisfaction of being of service to mankind go a long way toward making life worth while.

2—Make a Budget

Every person who works is in the business of making a living. The money which he earns represents himself, his time, energy and brains. The way he spends that income shows the value which he places upon himself. It is important then to plan in advance so important a thing as expenditures. The budget plan helps to have a measure of control over spending.

3—Keep a Record of Expenditures

Having estimated in advance how to dispose of resources, special care should be used in spending. Get full value for every cent spent. Supplement this by keeping a record of expenditures. This enables one to see how near he is keeping within estimates. It is a business like way to proceed which helps save more.

4—Have a Bank Account

The day has come when a man keeps his money in his pocket or an old sock, where it earns no interest for its owner. A good bank account is essential to credit. Money in the bank constitutes the working capital for many different business enterprises and helps make national prosperity.

5—Carry a Life Insurance

The one sure thing in life is death. With income cut off, the amount left for the maintenance of loved ones is often uncertain. By being well insured one is relieved of worry over this important matter. Life insurance is a necessary element of a normal standard of living.

6—Own Your Own Home

This is the ideal of every man and woman. Today, in most cases, a man can buy a home on the monthly payment plan. Consult a building and loan association or real estate dealer. Owning one's own home is not only an excellent way to save money, but it increases self-respect, provides greater happiness and makes for an ideal home life.

7—Make a Will

The less a man has to leave, in many cases, the more important it is to leave that little in a way that will decrease court costs and family expenses. In making a will one shows foresight. He places the work of a lifetime in the hands of those whom he considers capable of administering his affairs.

8—Pay Your Bills Promptly

Pay bills on pay day. If one is paid every week, he should not ask the grocer to carry his account for thirty days. When he accepts goods on credit, he has a moral obligation to pay the bill when due. If the money one is earning today is to be paid out for debts on pay day, he is owed by those to whom he is in debt. It is worth while to keep independent.

9—Invest in Government Securities

War savings stamps, treasury savings certificates and liberty bonds are not only a convenient means for saving, but provide a guaranteed security with an adequate return. Own something. Own stock in your government to whom we all owe allegiance.

10—Share With Others

The hoarding of money makes a miser, whether he hoards pennies or dollars. The investing of money for the benefit of others, as well as for one's self, when wisely done, makes a good citizen. "Give while you live." Everyone can have the joy and satisfaction of giving to the church and of sharing with others.
